PROPOSALS

For Publishing, by Subscription,

THE COMPLETE WORKS OF

SIR WALTER SCOTT:

With a Biography: being the first American (and only) edition which contains the Author's last additions and illustrations, arranged upon their respective pages.

A COMPLETE and uniform edition of the various productions of the great 'Minstrel of the North,' is a desideratum with the American public. No library is complete without them, and no edition extant is sufficiently compact for such a repository; while the endless number of editions, without any uniformity in size, heretofore published, besides being exceedingly cumbrous, are far too voluminous and expensive to be within the reach of the great majority of readers. The undersigned therefore announce, that they have now in press, and will issue, an edition of the Works of Sir Walter Scott, which will embrace all his Poems, Novels, Histories, Biographies, and Fugitive Compositions, as well as the Biography and Private Correspondence, now in the course of publication in England, under the superintendence of Mr. Lockhart.

1st. In Parts: each Part embracing as much matter as is contained in two volumes of the present editions of the Waverley Novels, which will be put at the unprecedented low price of THIRTY SEVEN AND A HALF CENTS.

2d. Two parts will appear each month; but should the publishers find the work to meet the patronage they anticipate, FOUR PARTS will be issued monthly.

3d. The whole will be completed in seven volumes, or forty eight parts.

The paper on which the above is now printing, has been made expressly for the purpose; the present parts may, therefore, be considered a fair specimen, in every respect, of the whole work; but, should dissatisfaction arise with any subscriber, owing to an inferior article being offered, he may discontinue at any time, and have the amount paid returned.

Note.—The publication of the first volume is deferred until the receipt of the Biography, Private Correspondence, and the New Edition of the Author's Poetical Works, with 'contemporary criticism—various readings—and correspondence with some of the most eminent persons of the time when the Poems first appeared,' now in the course of publication in England.

Volume I will be ornamented with an excellent Portrait of Sir Walter Scott.

DAILY PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON, OCT. 17, 1833.

☞ PUBLIC SALE of the County Lots takes place on Tuesday, the fifth day of November, and not on the fifteenth, as was stated in some papers.

☞ An indictment was, yesterday, found against John Watt, for voting at two different election districts, on the 8th instant. The trial, we believe, will be postponed until the next term of the Mayor's court. The defendant is the hopeful son in law of John Wallace—commonly known as the "Turnpike Justice."

ANOTHER OUTRAGE.—Yesterday morning, after Avery Allyn had given his testimony in the case against McElwayne, Loyd, and Brennan, he was just leaving the Court House, when a ruffian, of the name of Baxter, walked up to him, and exclaiming "Oh you damned rascal!" struck him one or two severe blows with his fist.

No provocation had been given—nothing had previously occurred between them—no cause was assigned for this outrage—Allyn did not even know Baxter's name.—Allyn immediately returned into court, stated the facts to the counsel for the commonwealth; and, upon application to the court, process was issued, Baxter was arrested, and a bill found, by the grand jury, against him.

☞ Since writing the above paragraph, we have learned that Baxter has kept out of the way, and has not yet been arrested.

THE LEGISLATURE.—The Harrisburgh Chronicle, of the 14th instant, says that the State Senate, next winter, will consist of 25 Democrats, or Jacksonites, and 8 Antimasons and National Republicans—and the House of Representatives of 67 Democrats, or Jacksonites, 23 pure Antimasons, and 10 National Republicans.—Among the Jacksonites, however, the Editor of the Chronicle has placed Robert Hilands, of Allegheny, and M'Elwee and Barclay, of Bedford, all of whom were elected as anti Jackson men.

With these corrections, the Legislature will stand as follows—

	Jackson.	anti Jackson.
Senate,	25	8
House of Rep.,	64	36
	89	44 maj. 45.

A Meeting of the Young Men's Society will be held on Tuesday evening next, the 22d inst., in the Society's room, corner of Market and Fourth sts., at 7 o'clock. The Young Men of the city are respectfully invited to attend.

J. CAROTHERS, Rec. Sec.

The Question proposed for discussion, on that evening, is—"Whether has Civil or Moral Obligation the greater influence over mankind."

Appointments by the Governor.—ELLIS LEWIS, Esq., President Judge of the 8th judicial district of Pennsylvania.

GEORGE M. DALLAS, Esq., Attorney General of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in the room of Ellis Lewis, appointed judge.

It affords us pleasure to state that business upon the Lake continues to be lively and profitable. Within the last 24 hours, there have been thirty six arrivals at this port. Of these 7 were steam boats, and 29 schooners, heavily laden with cargoes of merchandise, destined for the Ohio Canal. Eleven of the vessels arrived from the Lower Lake by the Welland Canal. The British schooner, Velocipede, brought the furniture and part of the engine of the new and splendid steam boat, George Washington, which was recently wrecked on the Canada shore.—Cleveland Herald, Oct. 12.

The Rail Road.—The Engineers and Contractors are urging the completion of this great work with as much rapidity as possible, and are fully confident of finishing the one track before the setting in of the severe winter. The operations on the road have been retarded by the scarcity of hands, the consequence of numerous similar works in progress in the United States, and by disappointment in the receipt of Iron.

The magnitude of this work, and the many difficulties which presented themselves, are known to few. An inspection of the line would satisfy any one that not only skill, but industry and economy have been exerted in its construction.

An application will be made to the next Legislature for an appropriation to finish the road by laying down a second track of railway. The best interest of the state demands its completion, and we trust to the wisdom of our Legislature for supplying the means.—Ebensburg Sky.

The Canals.—Tolls to the amount of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars have been received at the State Treasury, up to Saturday last. The amount taken from the commencement of the fiscal year, on the 1st of November last, is about $150,000. When the accounts of the collectors are fully settled, on the 31st of October, there will be about $175,000 derived from this source of revenue.

42 arrivals and departures are recorded as having taken place at Northumberland, during the week ending October 9. About four times that number have taken place at Harrisburg, during the same space of time. It may be inferred, from this, that business is brisk.—Har. Chron.

Navigation of the St. Lawrence.—It may, indeed, be said of American enterprize, that it never slumbers nor sleeps. A project of vast importance to our Northern Frontier, begins to be agitated at Ogdensburgh, to which, as a matter of course, the attention of the people of this State will be directed. It is no other than that of making the St. Lawrence river navigable, between the Lake St. Francis and Ogdensburgh, at a comparatively trifling expense, and bringing its whole trade within the State of New York, where a transit duty may be levied upon it, that, of itself, will defray a great part of the expenses of the State Government.

It appears that the Grass river, which is navigable for steam boats to within three miles of Massena Village, is separated at this point from the St. Lawrence, by a deep ravine, and very low land, which, at a trifling expense, might be made a navigable channel!

This channel would communicate with the St. Lawrence, half a mile above the Long Sault rapids!

The Canadians have proposed to cut a Canal round these rapids, on their side of the river, but this project of our countrymen would effectually divert the carrying trade through our own territory.

The contemplated canal will be but five miles long, and require but two locks!

The nature of the ground is such that the excavation will be practicable at a small expense. We hope the people of Ogdensburgh will have surveys made immediately, in order that the action of the Legislature may be had upon the subject as early as possible.

We should be glad to learn from our friends in that quarter, a more particular account of the capabilities of the Grass river, and also of the natural canal connecting it and the Oswegatchie.—N. Y. American.

MAD RIVER AND LAKE ERIE RAIL ROAD.

The facts and reasonings of the annexed expose by the Commissioners who are here to superintend the opening of books for subscription to the stock of the Mad River and Lake Erie Rail Road, cannot, we think, but have the effect of recommending the enterprize to the capitalists of the city:

"In presenting this road to the citizens of New York for patronage and support, it will be expected that the Commissioners offer to those who are asked to invest there funds in its stock, some evidence of its probable productiveness; together with its utility and importance to the public, as a thoroughfare of travel and commerce.

The connection of the southern bay of Lake Erie, at Sandusky, with the northern bend of the Ohio river at Cincinnati, by rail road and canal, has long been looked to with interest and solicitude by the people of the West; and has struck with great force, all intelligent travelers that have passed from one to the other of these points, as a work in every way worthy of the patronage and support of the citizens of New York and Ohio, whose interest it so indissolubly unites. The fertility of the country through which this connection must be made, its uniform soil and even surface, with its admirable adaptation to the construction of a rail road, point to it as one that, in a few years, must be as productive as any work of the same character in this or any other country.

Compare this with any other rout in the United States, and then ask yourself, where it is that you intercept as large a portion of the travel from the West to the eastern cities, as you do by this contemplated rail road.

Is it not by this rout that you tap the great artery of the western travel and western commerce, at its most eligible point, and by that means at once throw your merchandise into the centre of our population, and agricultural wealth at the city of Cincinnati; which is now and must ever continue to be the most important point in the valley of the Mississippi.

Cincinnati at this time concentrates nearly all the travel from the nine western and south western States, towards the Atlantic cities, and hence the great importance of uniting New York by easy and expeditious conveyance with that place. Construct this road to Lake Erie, and your Utica and other roads, on to Buffalo, and you have accomplished your object by opening an easy line of conveyance, that can never be supplanted, either by a rout from Baltimore or Philadelphia, across the Allegheny mountains, nor by any other, connecting lake Erie with the great valley of the Mississippi. And the traveler from the far west, instead of having to pass through Baltimore and Philadelphia to reach New York, as is now the case, will then find it much more easy, and convenient, and cheaper, to pass through New York, in order to reach Baltimore and Philadelphia.

The time required to travel from the principal points in the western and south western States, by the rout of the proposed road, (in connection with a Railroad from Buffalo and Albany,) to New York, (and we intend to make ample allowance) will be as follows:—

From New Orleans to New York, 13 days; from Natchez to New York, 11 days; from St. Louis, via the Great National (McAdamized) Road, which intersects the proposed railroad at Springfield, 7 days; from Vandalia, the capital of Illinois, by do. 6 days; and from Indianapolis, the capital of Indiana, also by the National Road, 5 days; from Nashville, the capital of Tennessee, 7 days; from Louisville, Kentucky, via Cincinnati, 5 days; from Cincinnati, 4 days; and from Sandusky, 3 days—and here we will remark, that the proposed railroad will present the most direct rout that can possibly be obtained, from Buffalo to each of the above named places.

We are unable to form a correct estimate of the amount of merchandise and agricultural productions that will pass and repass over this road, but we appeal with confidence to all who have traveled over the section of country through which this rout passes, (and we have been pleased to meet with many of your citizens that have,) if in this, or any other country, they have seen a better soil, with more industrious occupants, or a larger surplus of agricultural productions than is to be found along this very line of inland communication. We have traveled much in both the western and eastern parts of the United States, and without favor to this section of country, or prejudice against any other, we confess that we have yet to see the country capable of yielding the same amount of agricultural productions.

We are not, however, left entirely to conjecture on this point, but have at our command an official document, from which we will make a few extracts.

This road connects with the northern termination of the Miami canal, at Dayton. This canal is a mere indentation from Cincinnati into the country up the Miami valley of only sixty five miles; connecting no important point, but merely operating as a drain to take off a portion of the surplus production along its rout, and near its termination.

In the Report of the Canal Commissioners to the Legislature of Ohio, which will be found at pages 342--3, and 4, in the journals of their session, the following facts are stated:

"The saving, by transportation on the Ohio Canal, (which is 310 miles in length) over the ordinary mode of transportation by wagons, is $231,004 and 94 cts.—and the saving by means of the Miami Canal which is 65 miles in length, is $81,152 and 82 cts. But the parallel in favor of this rout does not stop here—The property that arrived at Cleveland during the last year by the Ohio Canal was the following—wheat and flour amounting to 112,158 barrels; pork, 13,081 barrels; whiskey, 2,150 barrels. During the same period of time, the property that arrived at Cincinnati by the Miami Canal was as follows: flour, 97,578 barrels; pork, 19,758; whiskey, 40,425 barrels.—Thus presenting the fact, from official documents, that in the exports of flour, pork, and whiskey, the great staples of Ohio, there passed through the Miami Canal, which is only 65 miles in length, and yet connecting no important commercial point with Cincinnati, 29,662 barrels more than passed through the Ohio Canal during the same time.

In the same report we have the following statement of the tolls and water rents paid on each of those canals during the last year. On the Ohio canal, there were paid $82,867 42; and on the Miami canal, 40,928 81—still keeping the same relative proportion in favor of the latter, and the productiveness of the country through which it and the anticipated railroad is intended to form a line of communication.

JOSEPH VANCE, } Commissioners.
ISAAC MILLS, }

NOTE.—It is proper for us to state here, that there were but 270 miles of the Ohio canal, to wit: from Cleveland to Chillicothe, open during the whole of the last season; the balance of the distance, from Chillicothe to the Ohio river, was not opened until towards the latter part of the season.

ROBERT MORRIS.

To no man, not excepting Washington himself, do Americans owe so heavy a debt of gratitude, and to no man has less of gratitude been shown. While statues and monuments have been erected to the more fortunate American statesman and soldier, the name of Robert Morris has been suffered to fade away from our memories. A review of this great man's life, may not, it is true, yield the most pleasant remembrances. It is hardly flattering to American pride to reflect that he, whose single arm saved our country from the wide gulf of 'national bankruptcy,' was kindly suffered to rot away the last hours of a long life, spent in his country's service, in the filthy cell of a country jail, for a paltry debt.

Mr. Morris was born at Lancashire, England, January 1730, O. S. He embarked for America at the age of thirteen, and from that period engaged in mercantile pursuits. At the commencement of the revolution, he was the first merchant in Philadelphia—and though he had more at stake upon the chance of war, than any other man, he played the game boldly and manfully. He opposed the stamp act, signed the non-importation agreement of 1765, and consecrated himself, heart and hand, to the holy cause of liberty. In '75 he was elected to the second Congress, and by that body was placed on all committees relating to the navy, maritime affairs, and finance. When the public treasure was exhausted, he brought forward his whole immense credit, borrowed money to a great amount on his sole personal responsibility, and by his generosity, sagacity, and resources, made himself the life and soul of the American cause. His noble example was itself invaluable. Others looked upon him, in the dark hour of danger and peril, and saw in his eye and unwavering bearing, comfort, and hope. His sagacity penetrated through the thick clouds that hung over us, and saw beyond a bright and clear sky.

In 1781 he was appointed superintendent of finance, and by act of Congress, the entire control of the public pecuniary interests was intrusted to him. The credit of the treasury was at this time at the lowest ebb. Public safety depended on its restoration. In the year 1782, Mr. Morris had established a subscription bank, of which his own shares amounted to £10,000. '81, he established the Bank of North America. This was a happy measure; its notes were declared by Congress receivable as gold and silver, for the payment of all duties and taxes in the United States. Morris furnished the plan of the bank and made an urgent appeal to the public in its behalf. The instantaneous revival of public and private credit upon its establishment, was truly miraculous.

At this time the private fortune of Mr. Morris was ample, and his personal credit boundless, and wherever his official resources were inadequade he pledged it. His advances in favor of the Federal Government and the individual States were enormous. He furnished the supplies which were requisite to Gen. Washington's expedition against Cornwallis. He issued his own notes to the amount of one million four hundred thousand dollars, which were all paid.—The tremendous obstacles he overcame, in the honest discharge of his duties, stamp him as a man of determined energy and perseverance. The public danger had induced Mr. Morris to accept the office of superintendent of finance, and the danger being past, he wished to escape from this excessive toil and liability. After several ineffectural attempts, he obtained a dismission in November, 1784. In 1786, he was elected a member of the convention which framed the Federal Constitution. No man had more often and severely felt the want of an efficient government. He had incessantly asked for a stronger bond, or instrument, than the old confederation, for 'a firm, wise, and manly system of Federal government;' and strenuously co-operated in devising and recommending the present.

In 1788, the General Assembly of Pennsylvania appointed him to represent the state in the first Senate of the United States, which assembled at New York. As a member of that body, he distinguished himself by wise counsels, and particularly by an irresistible speech for the repeal of the tender laws. He was a fluent, correct, and impressive orator; he wrote with ease and terseness; his fund of political knowledge could not be but ample. His acquaintance with the affairs of the world exceeded, in extent and diversity, that of any of his fellow patriots, Franklin excepted; his conversation was, therefore, replete with interest and instruction. When the Federal Government was organized, Washington offered him the post of Secretary of the Treasury, which he declined; and, being requested to designate a person for it, he named Gen. Hamilton,—a choice most happy, though not an expected choice.

At the conclusion of the war, he engaged in the East India trade. He was the first man who ever attempted an 'out of season' passage to China. This passage is effected by going round the south cape of New Holland—thus escaping the periodical winds of the China seas. Much amazement was felt by the European vessels at so strange an arrival, and as no ship had ever before made a similar passage, the Lords of the Admiralty subsequently applied to Mr. Morris, for information, in relation to the track of his ship. In his old age, Mr. Morris unfortunately engaged in very extensive land speculations, which ruined his fortune. The latter years of his life were passed in prison, because he was unable to pay his debts.—He died May 8, 1806. Mr. Morris was of a large frame, with a manly open countenance, and courteous, though simple, manners. He was hospitable, generous, and fond of conviviality, and, until impoverished, his purse was ever open at the call of his country or his fellow citizens.—Anon.

Scientific Discovery.—Mr. Rutter, of Lymington, already known as the author of a treatise on Gas Lighting, has obtained a patent for a new method of producing heat, which is certainly one of the most useful discoveries of modern science.—The principal ingredient employed for fuel in this new process, is water! The only material required besides, is something in a liquid form, which contains a large portion of carbon; whale oil, tar, or almost any thing of a similar kind, will answer the purpose. As these materials are introduced into the furnace simultaneously, and in combination with each other, the one yields its carbon, while the other gives out its hydrogen, and a small portion of atmospheric air is the only thing that is then required to keep them in a state of perfect combustion. The flame thus produced is so completely under management, that, in one second, it can be reduced or augmented as occasion may require. It is almost unnecessary to add that it yields no smoke, and consequently the hideous funnel, now used in steam packets, may be laid aside. But the greatest advantage of all is, that steam navigation may henceforth be employed in oases where, till now, it was altogether impracticable. A vessel may be so constructed, as to take on board, without any inconvenience, a supply of fuel, which would enable her to circumnavigate the globe.—London Paper.

Monticello is again for sale. Perhaps no property in Virginia will be disposed of at a lower rate than the splendid seat of Mr. Jefferson. The extreme beauty of its situation, the costly and chaste architecture of the dwelling, added to all its historical associations, would, we should think, ensure it a purchaser. Its present proprietor is Dr. Barclay, who bought of the executor of Mr. Jefferson.—Richmond Compiler

From our old Correspondent, of "Arlington."

THE HUNTING SHIRT.

SMALLWOOD'S REGIMENT.

The following interesting reminiscence of the Days of Trial, with a graphic description of a Corps that was composed of the chivalry of Maryland, and formed the very elite of the Army of Independence, in the memorable campaign of 1776, will, we are assured, be read with gratification by all the Americans.

These details are selected from among a series of papers, furnished by our venerable neighbor, and Revolutionary veteran, Major Adlum to Mr. Curtis, of Arlington, for the latter gentleman's work, "The Private memoirs of Washington."

"Smallwood's Regiment arrived in Philadelphia about the middle of July, 1776, the day after the militia of York Town got there. I happened to be in Market street, when the Regiment was marching down it. They turned up Front street, till they reached the Quaker meeting House, called the Bank meeting, where they halted for some time, which I presumed was owing to a delicacy on the part of the officers, seeing they were about to be quartered in a place of worship. After a time, they moved forward to the door, where the officers halted, and their platoons came up, and stood with their hats off, while the soldiers with recovered arms, marched into the meeting house. The officers then retired, and sought quarters elsewhere.

"The Regiment was then said to be eleven hundred strong; and never did a finer, more dignified, and braver body of men, face an enemy. They were composed of the flower of Maryland, being young gentlemen, the sons of opulent Planters, Farmers, and Mechanics. From the Colonel to the private, all were attired in Hunting Shirts. I afterwards saw this fine corps on their march to join General Washington.

"In the battle of Long Island, Smallwood's Regiment, when engaged with an enemy of overwhelmingly superior force, displayed a courage and discipline, that sheds upon its memory an undying lustre, while it was so cut to pieces, that in the October following, when I again saw the Regiment, its remains did not exceed a hundred men.

"Captain Edward de Courcy, Captain Herbert, a Captain, and a Doctor Stuart, of Smallwood's, were among the prisoners taken at Long Island, with whom I became acquainted, while I was a prisoner in New York.

"The wreck of the once superb regiment of Smallwood fought in the battles of the White Plains, and the subsequent actions in the Jerseys, in the memorable campaign of 1776, terminating with the battle of Princeton, Jan. '77, where the remains of the regiment, reduced to little more than a company, was commanded by Captain, afterwards Governor, Stone of Maryland."

NOTE, BY MR. CUSTIS.

The Hunting Shirt, the emblem of the Revolution, is banished from the national military, but still lingers among the hunters and pioneers of the far West. This national costume, properly so called, was adopted in the outset of the Revolution, and was recommended by Washington to his army, in the most eventful period of the war of Independence. It was a favorite garb with many of the officers of the line, particularly, the gallant Col. Josiah Parker.

When Morgan's Riflemen, made prisoners at the assault on Quebec, in 1775, were returning to the South, to be exchanged, the British garrisons on the rout beheld with wonder these sons of the mountain and the forest. Their hardy looks, their tall athletic forms, their marching always in Indian file, with the light and noiseless step peculiar to their pursuit of woodland game; but, above all, to European eyes, their singular and picturesque costume, the Hunting Shirt, with its fringes, the wampum belts, leggins and moccasins, richly worked with the Indian beads and porcupine quills of brilliant and varied dyes, the tomahawk and knife; these, with the well known death-dealing aim of these matchless marksmen, created in the European military a degree of awe and respect for the hunting shirt, which lasted with the War of the Revolution.

That the fame of the prowess of American woodsmen had not been effaced by time, let me instance the "ruse de guerre" most happily played off by a Yankee Captain upon a British Admiral during the last war.

A captain G. had been taken by one of the vessels composing the Chesapeake squadron, and was carried on board the Admiral, who, after civilly treating his prisoner, one day observed—Pray, Captain G., if I should determine to make a reconnoissance up the Potomac, towards your Seat of Government, how many riflemen may I expect to find on the banks of the river, as my pilots tell me the channel way in some places runs very near to the land. I do not mean your regulars, but those Hunting Shirt fellows from the woods who can hit any button on my coat, when they are in the humor of sharp shooting. Here the Yankee, being wide awake to the importance of the question, as regarding his country's interests, went right to windward of the Admiral at once. He looked grave, and began to reckon deliberately on his fingers; after a time, he replied, with perfect composure, Why, I guess somewhere about ten or eleven thousand, sir. The Briton in his turn looked grave, and turning to his officers, observed, I believe we will not go up at this time.

Not a Long Rifle, that is, such as a Hunting Shirt would use, (for a genuine Tomahawk would not pick up in the street a short or jager piece,) was, at the time, within a hundred miles of the Potomac; and the Yankee well knew it; but finding that he had an opportunity of protecting an important portion of his country by hoaxing a British Admiral, he thought that the end justified the means, and to take advantage is the true morality of war; the Yankee so played his part, and famously too.

General Morgan frequently observed, The very sight of my riflemen was always enough for a Hessian picquet. They would scamper into their lines as if the d—l drove them, shouting, in all the English they knew, Rebel in de bush? Rebel in de bush!

The famous corps of Morgan was raised in the Shenandoah Valley, and the mountains circumjacent. The drum and fife, and even the Sergeant's hard dollars on the drum head, would not have enlisted a man of this corps. It was like the devotion of a Highland clan to its Chief. Morgan was the Chief. Morgan, with whom those hardy fellows had wrestled and fought, and kicked up all sorts of a dust for a long time. When Morgan cried, with his martial inspiration, Come, boys, who's for the camp before Cambridge, the mountaineers turned out to a man. Short was their "note of preparation." The blanket buckled to their backs, their baggage, a supply of food in their pouches, scanty as an Aborigine would take for a long march, their commissariat—they grasped their rifles, and strode away to the North, a band of giants, for the combats of Liberty.

The Americans may be said at this time to have no national costume—all is borrowed from abroad. They "order things" better in Scotland. There, the Gael adheres to the martial habiliments of his ancestors, proud of their renowned recollections, and jealous of the peculiar colors of his tartan.—Amid the cruel persecutions of the Forty Five, was the proscription of the Highland costume; which is, in truth, the only relic of the ancient Roman dress. What British Ministry would proscribe it now. They hail with joy the philibeg and hose, whose warriors have covered their arms with glory in every quarter of the world. From the time that the old Highland watch, the renowned "Fortie twa," first embarked for foreign service, down to the present hour, in every action where they have been engaged, in every quarter of the world, the friend and the foeman have alike awarded Glory to the Kilts. But suppose, for a moment, yielding to the "march of intellect," you disrobe Donald of his trews, and fit him with "braw breeks," in their stead—adieu, then, adieu to the magic influence of the soul stirring pipes; no longer will the awful cry of Claymore drive him headlong into the ranks of the foe; and soon, very soon, would there be a farewell to the glories of the "Fortie twa."

And should not Americans feel proud of the garb, and hail it as National, in which their fathers endured such toil and privation, in the mighty struggle for Independence, which is associated with so many and imposing events of the Days of Trial—the march across the frozen wilderness, the assault on Quebec, the triumphs of Saratoga and the King's Mountain? But a little while, and of a truth, the Hunting Shirt, the venerable emblem of the Revolution, will have disappeared from among the Americans, and only to be found in museums, like ancient armor, exposed to the gaze of the curious.—Nat. Int.

The Charleston Mercury, in the annexed paragraph, is not wide of the mark:

Mr. Van Buren and the Deposits.—It is suspected that having accomplished his scheme against the Bank, through the instrumentality of Jackson, it will now be a part of Van Buren's game to pretend that he was opposed to the arbitrary and disgraceful measure of removing the deposits. Unfortunately for that gentleman, if such be his purpose, his organ, the Richmond Enquirer, has already boasted that he was the only member of the Cabinet who stood by the President, and sanctioned his first assault upon the Bank. It is a part of his non committal policy, of course, to wire work his puppets, without showing his hand from behind the juggling screen; but, as the Telegraph once said, his denial is strong presumption, in the eyes of the people, of the truth of the thing denied, and it will avail him nothing. He may disavow the Proclamation, and this kindred act of tyranny, till doomsday; but he will be held responsble for both, and we are informed by the Philadelphia papers, that in that city one universal voice of censure is uttered, not only against Jackson, as the perpetrator, but against Mr. Van Buren, as the prompter of this flagrant outrage upon the American people.

From the New York American.

In looking over an old bundle of French pamphlets, the other day, I was greatly struck with the sentiments contained in one of them, a mutilated copy, purporting to be "Extracts from a celebrated speech delivered before the National Convention, in Paris, in 1793." I have ventured upon a literal translation of a few passages, as being somewhat applicable to mere passing events in 1883:—

"Man is born to enjoy happiness and liberty, yet too frequently is he miserable and enslaved!

Governments are instituted for the preservation of his rights and the perfection of his faculties; yet every where Governments disgrace and oppress him.

To give to Government energy sufficient that citizens may ever respect the rights of their fellow citizens, and to prevent Government from encroaching on those rights; this, in my opinion, is the double problem that legislators have to solve.

Read history, and you will every where see rulers oppressing citizens; Governments swallowing sovereign law!

Political evils are never occasioned by the people, but are caused by the Government.

How could it be otherwise? The people are interested in the public good; the man in office has a private interest.

Government is instituted to cause the general will to be obeyed; but men who govern have a will of their own; and every will tends to make itself obeyed.

The respect which a public functionary inspires, depends much more upon the respect he shows to the laws, than on the power he usurps."

In 1831, there were 760,697 sheep in Vermont. In 1832, according to the returns in the Secretary of State's Office, 805,409. The greatest number, 145,655, was in Rutland county; Windsor, 109,914; Addison, 113,729; Orange, 79,472; Windham, 71,836; Chittenden, 56,517; Bennington, 54,214, &c. The wool growers of the north, as well as the cotton planters of the south, may well rejoice in the profits they are receiving from their crops.

The Coal Trade.—During the past summer, a considerable quantity of our Bituminous Coal has been sent to the Philadelphia Market. It was carried from the mountain in wagons to Hollidaysburgh, and from thence transported on the Canal. We understand it has yielded a good profit, and is in good repute, and in great demand. Our county abounds with this kind of Coal; and, when the railroad is finished, it can be sent to market at a cheap rate, and will be a profitable business.—Ebensburgh Sky.

Mammoth Scale.—On Saturday last, in company with a number of gentlemen from Easton, we visited the Weigh Lock of the Delaware Division, opposite this place, which has just been finished by Mr. John Cole, of Rochester, New York, its ingenious inventor. The dimensions are as follows:

Length of scale, 74 feet.
Width, 13 feet.
Weight of cast iron in lock, 15,835 lbs.
wrought iron, 5,421.

This is one of the largest scales ever built in this country, and the work has been personally superintended by Mr. Cole. As a model of strength and workmanship, this lock exceeds any thing of the kind we have ever seen—and our readers will learn with surprise, that it weighs from three pounds up to one hundred tons! Indeed, when first put up, an ounce weight turned the scale. We advise our readers to visit it, and examine for themselves.—Easton Argus.

Wool.—The Northampton Courier, of the 9th inst. says:—Large quantities of Wool continue daily to pass through this village from the 'hill towns' to the manufacturing establishments in Worcester county. One load from Worthington last week, which contained upwards of 1,900, was purchased at 70, 65 1-2, 55 1-2c. the different grades. One individual alone in Middlefield, has sold, during the past season, 1,100 fleeces at 70c. per lb., averaging $2 each fleece. This gives an income of $2,200 for one farmer from sheep alone, drawn out from soil which is unfit for every other purpose but grazing. An individual familiar with these matters has said to us, that in most of the towns west of Northampton, more cash would be obtained for Wool this year, than for every other commodity raised or manufactured there, put together.—Poulson.

HOPS.—The late heavy gales in England, have caused great damage to the crops of Hops. The London Courier supposes the loss will produce a decrease of from 25 to 30,000 pounds on the duty.

Paper Mill for Sale.

THE Extensive Establishment, known as the Soft Spring Paper Mill, now in the occupancy of C. Lukens & Co. is offered for sale.—Its situation is both desirable and healthy, possessing local advantages superior to any mill in the west, with a spring of pure, soft water, yielding a superabundance for all purposes—propelled by an engine sufficiently powerful, and to which has recently been added an entire New Machine for the manufacture of paper. Its location is about two miles from the city, on the Eastern Turnpike. The subscribers have no hesitation in believing it offers inducements to purchasers highly advantageous.

The terms will be rendered satisfactory, and but a small portion of the purchase money required at the time of sale, with an extended credit for the residue, being determined to make an early disposal. It will be sold low. Application made personally, or by communication, to either of the subscribers, will be attended to.

PIANO FORTES.

MR. TAYLOR respectfully announces to the citizens of Pittsburgh, that he has just received an assortment of PIANO FORTES, from the celebrated manufactory of Robert Nunns, Clark, and Co. (late R. & W. Nunns,) of New York, which he offers to the public at a fair price, and liberal terms.

The instruments of this most extensive establishment have (for quality and volume of tone, and for materials and workmanship) received the decided approbation of the most distinguished professors of this country and Europe. The manufacturers therefore feel confident in resting their claims to public patronage upon the intrinsic merits of the Piano Fortes themselves.

FLUTES.

Also, a few of 'Taylor's approved' Flutes; these instruments are well worth the attention of the Amateures of the Flute.

☞Ladies and Gentlemen are invited to call and examine the above instruments, at Cook and Schoyer's (late Sylvester's) store, corner of Wood and Third streets, where they will remain but a short time, Mr. Taylor's stay in this place being limited. Oct. 7, 1833.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscribers, Trustees of the New Philadelphia Society, at Phillipsburgh, Beaver county, Pennsylvania, offer for sale the following property, to wit:

1	tract of land	containing	330 acres
1	do	do	330
1	do	do	67
1	do	do	7
1	do	do	40

other lots, containing about 6

The above lands lie in one body, fronting about two miles upon the Ohio river—immediately opposite the mouth of Big Beaver creek, and the Beaver Division of the Pennsylvania Canal. The land is rich, and a part of it under a high state of cultivation—its location pleasant and healthy. The improvements upon the same are valuable, including the town of Phillipsburgh, late the residence of Count Leon, and the New Philadelphia Society. The town contains about 40 Dwelling Houses, now in order; some of them brick houses and two stories high. A large and spacious Hotel, a Store house, Church, a number of Shops, for mechanics, Stables, Barns, and other out houses. Also, two large new buildings, lately erected, but not yet finished, one of brick, the other of frame (the latter suitable for a manufactory) a very extensive public garden, and also fruit trees of various kinds. The property has also attached to it the right of a ferry across the Ohio, which is valuable, and becoming more so every day.

The above property is situated in the midst of a wealthy and prosperous country, distant about 28 miles below Pittsburgh, and one mile from Beaver, the seat of justice for Beaver county---and having a view for many miles up and down the Ohio, and of the country to a great distance around.

The subscribers are confident in saying that few situations could be found, presenting greater facilities to the farmer, mechanic, the manufacturer, and others--- a soil rich and productive---the neighborhood abounding in coal---well timbered and watered, and, by means of the Pennsylvania Canal, and steamboat navigation, a cheap and ready conveyance to market, and a communication with other places is ensured.

The property is susceptible of divisions into farms, or for the location of new towns, or for the extension of the present one.

Should it not be sold on or before the first day of January next, it will then be offered at public sale, upon the premises, to the highest and best bidder.

It will be sold in a body, or in parcels, to suit purchasers.

Terms of sale will be reasonable.

Information can be had by enquiring of the subscribers, two of whom live in the neighborhood, and one on the premises.

Mechanics' Magazine, and Register of Improvements and Inventions. To the Mechanics of the United States---In this populous and enlightened country, almost every description of persons can obtain knowledge and amusement connected with their peculiar pursuits, through the medium of the Journal or Magazine, especially devoted to their interests. The Theologian, the Farmer, the Philosopher, the Sportsman, and even the Plough Boy, has each his Journal, where he can find a record of the passing events of the day, connected with his peculiar avocations and recreations. Hitherto, the Mechanics (who form a large and most important portion of the community) have had no Journal, to which they could turn, with the certainty of finding that information they desire, no periodical of which they could say: 'This is ours, and for us.' In the hope that the attempt to supply such a want at a price so reasonable as to be within the reach of all, will meet with your active support, the subscriber proposes to publish, on the first day of each month, a Mechanics' Magazine. It will contain a well digested selection of the most useful and interesting articles in the London Mechanics' Magazine, London Register of Arts and Sciences, Repertory of Inventions, Library of Useful Knowledge, Journal of the Franklin Institute, and other works, connected with the arts and manufactures, published in this country and in Europe, accompanied with numerous and well executed Engravings. Its pages will be open for the communications of all, and especially for those of the practical artisan, to whose interest it will be particularly devoted. The Mechanics' Magazine will contain, also, a due portion of the occurrences of the month, Scientific and Literary Reviews of Books, Anecdotes, Economical Receipts, Reports of the state of Mechanics' Institutions, and other Scientific Societies in this state and other countries. To be published monthly. Each succeeding number will contain 64 pages, handsomely printed, and stitched in a neat cover. Six numbers will form a volume, for which an index and title page will be supplied, and also a Portrait of some distinguished Mechanic, as a Frontispiece. Terms, $3 per annum, in advance.

DOCTOR ROBERT'S

☞ WELCH MEDICAMENTUM ☜

FOR the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Cholic, Fever and Ague, Dysentery, Headach, Loss of Appetite, Flatulence, Hypochondria, Hysterics, Dropsical Complaints, and Heartburn, It also prevents all Bilious disorders, and removes habitual Costiveness, Asthma, Strangury, Gravel, Rheumatism, Gout, and Impurities of the Blood.

A person who uses this Medicamentum will not require the use of the lancet, or any means of the healing art. It restores and revives the animal spirits, invigorates the system, removes nervous tremors, obtunds rheumatic and anthritic pains, and prevents their return. It cleanses the stomach of all morbid humors, which cause indigestion, acidities, headach, and lowness of spirits; cures all bilious disorders, and all cholics of the stomach and bowels, almost immediately; inspires cheerfulness; gives comfort to the dropsical; takes away palpitation of the heart; gives circulation to the blood; restores bloom to the sallow or sickly cheek, and plumpness to the meagre habit; purges without pain, and banishes all cause of fever of every kind. It acts on the stomach, that great reservoir of the human system, a diseased state of which causes all diseases. No alteration in the usual habits of life is required, but the abstaining from distilled ardent spirits.

CERTIFICATE,

From Rev. Derick Lansing, D. D., Pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Utica.

UTICA, Jan. 6, 1830.

To Dr. Hitchcock.—Dear Sir: I have always been one of the number of those who have placed little confidence in nostrums or specifics, and for this reason, although I saw your advertisement of the Welch Medicamentum, I could not bring my mind to consent to use it. My sufferings, from indigestion, during the past summer, were so severe, as materially to affect my comfort, and my capacity for usefulness. I have reason to thank you, sir, that, on hearing of the state of my health, you kindly sent me your Medicamentum. I have taken it faithfully, and with entire success. I have not been visited with one of those turns of distress, which before were weekly periodical, since I began to take your valuable medicine. Could I receive the same relief which I have hitherto experienced, on condition of taking it for life, I should cheerfully comply with such condition. Your's, very truly, D. C. LANSING.

ANTI-DYSPEPTIC ELIXER.

ONE of the most agreeable and efficacious Medicines ever discovered for the permanent cure of those chronic states of derangement of the stomach, constituting that miserable disease called Dyspepsia.

The basis of this Elixer is vegetables, and perfectly innocent in its operation; it destroys that sour state of the stomach, the instant it is taken, and stops the morbid secretion, by giving strength to the muscular fibre of that important organ, by which means the peristaltic motion of the intestines is increased, and the costiveness obviated; a new action is given to the system, which puts an end to a train of distressing nervous sensations.

Another form of the disease in which the Elixer is admirably calculated to relieve, is the decline of fever, where the stomach will not bear the ordinary strengthening medicines indicated in such cases, it has the surprising effect of giving vigor, and restoring the natural secretions of the body, without increasing the febrile state. Not the least danger is to be apprehended from exposure to cold, while under the use of this medicine, nor will it interrupt necessary employment of the patient a single hour.

☞A number of cases of cures performed by the Anti-Dyspeptic Elixer in the vicinity of Pittsburgh can be given.

GEO. W. CARPENTER'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF LIVERWORT,

A SAFE and Valuable Medicine for Coughs, Spitting of Blood, Consumption, and Liver Complaints.

Most of the medicines made use of for the above diseases are of a stimulating nature, composed generally of Resins and Balsams, in alcoholic solutions, which, although sometimes givingt emporary relief, in almost every instance where they are freely used, aggravate the disease, and reduce the strength of the patient.

This article possesses superior advantages over these preparations, its action being of a tonic, invigorating and strengthening nature, thus overcoming the disease by promoting expectoration, and gradully increasing the strength of the patient, and thus, without being attended with any unpleasant effects: it also agrees with the stomach, in a cases, and is a pleasant medicine to take.

Should any person, however, wish to purchase, and find it inconvenient to visit the places where it is in operation, a machine will be furnished, warranted to plane, tongue and groove, and bring to an exact width and thickness, a white pine board of 12 feet long, and of any width from 1 to 14 inches, in one minute and ten seconds, or an oak board of the same dimensions in 2 minutes and 10 seconds. Machines may be seen at work in the cities of New Orleans, Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, and others at the south and east, at Wheeling, Virginia, and at the saw mill of Messrs. Irwin & Herron, in this city.

Persons desiring to purchase will have the certificates of scientific and practical men who have seen it at work, in the different places in which it has been put up, forwarded to them. They give their opinion as to the great value of the invention, state the time they have seen boards dressed by this machine, and describe the quality of the work as compared with that performed by hand labor.
